More than a Place

When Paul Newman opened the first SeriousFun Children’s Network camp in 1986, he envisioned a place where children with serious illnesses could escape the pain and fear of their condition and just be a kid.

This camp, and the camps and programs that it would inspire around the world, would be bright and encouraging. They would be inspiring and inclusive. And believe every child and every family face their own unique challenges, they would be free of judgment and free of charge.

And whether or not Paul ever really knew it, these camps would be so much more than a place. More than a circle of cabins in the woods, more than a week away from home.

They would be a beacon of hope for children living with serious illnesses and their families.

And because Paul Newman knew that the fear, isolation, and instability of these conditions knows no geographic, social, or economic boundaries – he wanted to ensure that SeriousFun camps and programs would offer life-changing experiences for kids all throughout North America, Europe, Africa, Asia, and the Caribbean.

In the 34 years since that first camp opened, SeriousFun camps and programs have delivered more than 1,3 MILLION camp experiences to children and families from more than 50 countries, totally free of charge.

Experiences where 2 pinwheels reveal confidence.
Cabin chats create friendships.
Stage rights unleash independence.
Every minute is a moment of “YES I CAN!”

As yes, camp may be a place – but at SeriousFun, we believe the power isn’t in the place – it’s in the feeling that anything is possible. That is what makes camp what it really is: MAGIC.

LIFETIME DIRECTOR
Joanne Woodward
Dear Friends of SeriousFun,

It’s incredible how quickly another year goes by – and how, in an even shorter amount of time, the entire world can be turned upside down. As we look back at the tremendous achievements of our Network in 2019, I would be remiss if I did not recognize the extraordinary circumstances in which our Network, camps, families, caregivers, supporters, and communities have been living our lives and continuing to carry out our mission in 2020.

The COVID-19 pandemic disrupted everything we hold dear – our health and safety, our connection to friends and loved ones, our support systems, and our livelihoods. The sense of stability SeriousFun camps strive to provide to our campers and families, when they are already feeling their most vulnerable, was seemingly shaken to its core. But, as has always been the case with our camps, in times of great adversity we find the inner strength and determination to achieve even more in the service of our mission. Because, as we have all come to know – the magic of camp is not in this place, it lies in the hearts, minds, and spirits of all who come together to celebrate the joy, hope, and spirit of camp it inspires.

And while there is so much to say about the work our camps and programs have been doing during this incredibly uncertain time, we should not overlook the impressive work that took place in 2019 and the impact it continues to have on those who we serve. In 2019, SeriousFun delivered more than 15,700 residential and outreach experiences to kids and families all around the world, which means we also delivered at many moments of hope, happiness, and assurance to kids, parents, and caregivers who needed nothing more than to experience the magic of camp like so many other kids without illness do.

Additionally, when speaking of our ability to carry out our mission – in both good times and those which are more challenging than we could ever expect – we must recognize the smart, dedicated, and all-around remarkable people who bring our mission to life. Each year, our highly trained staff and volunteers make safety, inclusion, and fun their highest priority. In particular, I would like to acknowledge the more than 30,000 volunteers who offer endless energy, creativity, and care to help ensure our campers have the special childhood moments and friendships they deserve, moments that have the power to lift them into their futures.

So, as we look back at all the special SeriousFun moments of 2019 and look forward to the future we will together build, I would like to ask one thing of you. Please remember that our Network, camps, and programs are built on a vision of generosity and gratitude – the generosity you show in reaching out your hand to kids and families who need respite from the relentless illness, isolation, and fear they live with every day and who show the gratitude they feel with every well-worn smile.

Because camp is surely more than place, it is a belief that together we can make the world better, in Paul Newman’s words, “one smile at a time.”

Best,

Maurice Pratt

Creating camp magic

Celebrating the Magic of Our Mission

Congratulations to our Member Camps who celebrated these remarkable milestones in 2019.

Creating Camp Magic

Ask anyone who has participated in a SeriousFun camp or program what it makes it so special, and the answer will be as different as the individuals themselves. That’s why we just call it “Camp magic.”

Camp magic is the ability for kindness, inclusivity, and positivity to overcome anything that challenges you, might be perceived as limiting you, or make you feel doubt that you are deserving of anything less than all life has to offer.

Camp magic is greater than any illness, stronger than any circumstance, and more powerful than any doubt. And the most important thing about camp magic is that you take it with you, wherever you go.
In 1988, I picked up a copy of LIFELINE magazine and read an article about Paul Newman opening a camp for kids with serious illnesses in Connecticut. I skipped through the article, growing more excited with each paragraph I read, something about Paul's vision, getting a spark inside me. I spent the next two weeks locating a phone number for The Hole in the Wall Gang Camp (this was pre-internet, like many others who heard about a famous actor opening up a camp for kids with cancer and other life-limiting conditions, I wasn't sure what to expect from such a place. But it seemed inspiring, it seemed necessary, and, as a recent college graduate, it sounded like something unique and vital that I wanted to just be a part of.

Just be a part of...

That was what I thought then. Now, as a former counselor, Camp Director, Camp CEO, and the current Network CEO, I don't think all that differently. I believe that on some intuitive level Paul Newman knew what he was creating was special and powerful.

That any camper who attended such a camp would be changed forever in inexpressible ways. Maybe what he didn't anticipate is the immediate impact this experience would have on the families, staff members, and volunteers who became a part of them as well. But from the times I met him at camp as a young man, from the energy, excitement, and familiarity he brought with him to the camp, I have to think somewhere deep inside he envisioned that too. That someone through these camps we would all be changed forever.

Four years into my tenure as SeriousFun CEO, I am so proud of how far we have come as a Network. For more than 30 years, our camps have been changing the lives—and outlooks—of kids living with serious illnesses, and that is no small feat. But what I think is particularly remarkable is that over the course of those 30 years, an increasing number of camps and programs—now 30 in total—have started and endeavored to work collaboratively in a way that allows us to accomplish so much more for kids and families than we ever could alone.

To that end, representatives from our Member Camps and Partner Programs, the CEO Council, the Support Center, and the network Board of Directors came together in 2018 to determine what we wanted and needed to focus on and achieve as a Network together over the next three years. Now, as we begin through our first multi-year Network Strategy, we wanted to provide an update on three of the major priority work areas of that strategy and work.

Blake Maher, CEO, SeriousFun Children's Network
GROWTH & EXPANSION

In late 2018, a committee of Board and CEO representatives was established to undertake a set of work related to Growth & Expansion for the Network. The committee set out to:

- Explore goals around what we want and aspire for the Network to be in the future
- Define growth and expansion in the context of our vision for the collective Network
- Create a decision-making framework to guide future growth

With input and feedback gathered, three models of growth and expansion were outlined:

- Growth within our Existing Footprint of Camps and Programs
- Opportunities for establishing New Camps and Programs
- Expanding our Services and Innovations

We developed tools to help evaluate and project potential future growth at camps and programs that could reach more campers, and a decision-making framework to better evaluate the best growth opportunities outside of our existing camps and programs that would help add to an impactful and sustainable future for the Network.

RESEARCH & EVALUATION

Across the Network, there was universal agreement on the importance of the increased investment on research and evaluation of the critical value of camp. In September, Ann Gillard, PhD, SerousFun Research and Evaluation Advisor, surveyed all Member Camps to gain understanding of their individual and our collective research needs, capabilities, and goals.

The Network also secured funding through a new grant from Takeda to support research and evaluation over the next five years, including a study of the lasting impact of the SerousFun camp experience on former campers. The outcomes of which can be used by all camps to showcase the benefits of camp for those who attend.

SUPPORT CENTER FINANCIAL SUSTAINABILITY

We believe that it is essential that SerousFun camps and programs continue to be available and accessible to the campers, families, caregivers, and communities we serve. To help ensure that, a working group made up of SerousFun Board Members, CEOs, and Support Center staff collaborated to review historical financial data to begin developing a Network Financial Sustainability plan that will include the creation of a multi-year financial plan as a step in our longer-term vision of sustainability across the Network.

While the three areas presented here were recognized as principles to the near-term collaborative work of the strategy, they are in no way the only areas of importance in our collective work. Throughout the first two years under our Strategic Network stakeholders identified priority and emerging topics such as child safety, bullying and harassment, diversity, equity, and inclusion, medical risk and medical retention, and mental health and wellness as topics that both inform our work and require evaluation and attention to strengthen our work moving forward.

We are heartened by the work we have accomplished over the last two years and confident about what we will continue to achieve together as a Network. Thank you to everyone in our SerousFun family for their commitment to moving forward together.
Programmatic Innovation & Capacity Building

CAMP GRANTS PROGRAM

In the summer of 2019, the SeriousFun Support Center launched a new grant program, funded by Newman’s Own Foundation, to support the variety of needs expressed by Member Camps to help ensure they can remain high-performing organizations that are healthy, sustainable, and successful in delivering a positive impact for children and families around the world. To that end, the grant program is focused on four areas of advancement and sustainable ability: fundraising, staffing, and programming.

The Camp Sustainability Grant will provide a total of $2.5M to camps over the next four years (2020-2023).

Thank you, Newman’s Own Foundation, for continuing to support the camps which were not only founded on the vision of our shared founder, Paul Newman, but those which will proudly help carry on his legacy for decades to come.

PARTNER PROGRAM FAMILY WEEKENDS

After 10 years of bringing weeklong residential camps to children across Africa, Asia, and the Caribbean, SeriousFun Partner Programs have begun offering family weekend camps to children and their families. Since the first joint family weekend camp in Africa took place in Botswana in 2017, the family weekend camp model has assumed considerable growth. In 2018, a number of SeriousFun partners across Africa and Asia were awarded a Growth Grant to launch comprehensive family weekend camps in an effort to strengthen support structures for their patients living with HIV or cancer and their primary caregivers.

As a result of this expansion, teams at certain partner organizations have been able to track biomedical outcomes as well as the impact of family camp. For example, in Tanzania, the HIV-positive adolescents who attended the camp last year showed a substantial decrease in the viral load in their bodies, suggesting that the family camp has an impact on the health of these children. Future research is expected to further validate the impact of these camps on the health and treatment of children.

In 2019, SeriousFun in Uganda became the first partner program site in Africa to launch a family weekend camp for families of children living with a dual diagnosis of cancer and HIV.

REGIONAL MEDICAL AND CAMPER RECRUITER SUMMITS

In 2019, SeriousFun hosted two regional Medical and Camper Recruiter summits which brought our Medical Directors and Camper Recruiter together to discuss opportunities for expanding the reach and impact of our Network and build on the relationships that make our camp community so unique. In particular, the summits provided the context to more closely examine the issue of a broader reach and better understand the skills of our camper recruiters. The nine camps in the US attended their regional summit at Victory Junction in North Carolina, and the seven camps from Europe and Asia attended their summit at Dynamo Camp in Italy.

FIRST EVER PARTNER PROGRAM SUMMIT

For the first time in the history of the Partner Programs model, the Executive Directors of each partner organization were invited to attend a summit in November 2019 in London. The gathering provided an opportunity to discuss collaboration at the highest level on topics related to strategic direction, sustainability, growth potential, and risk mitigation. Additionally, a forum took place with SeriousFun’s Partner Program leaders that convened SeriousFun Board Members, European leadership Council Members, major donors, corporate partners, and Support Center staff for a unique opportunity to meet, learn, and engage with one another on issues related to children’s health across Africa, Asia, and the Caribbean, and how camp programs are an important psychological and medical need.

DIVERSITY, EQUITY AND INCLUSION TRAINING

In 2019, SeriousFun hosted a training for camp staff trainers focusing on the emerging topic of diversity, equity and inclusion at camp and beyond. The three-day training was facilitated by Meg Boger, a social justice facilitator and inclusion educator. Through the program, camp staff experienced the foundations for Diversity, Equity and Inclusion workshops as a participant, reviewed the curriculum in detail, and honed their facilitation skills to bring back to their home campuses to better support their campers and enrich their camp experiences.
The Liden family generously supports empowering and safe waterfront experiences for campers, all in the name of Angie.

Author Bonnie Tuli wrote, “Water is the great equalizer—no matter your age or size or color or physical ability, it buoy us all.” These words ring especially true for many of our campers and for people like Alliene Liden. Alliene, along with her husband, Richard – known as Dick, and daughter Angela, were brothers who spent weekends on Lake Erie. Angela, lovingly referred to as Angie, had Cystic Fibrosis. She found joy on the water and a reprieve from the countless hours of treatments and hospitalizations. In 1984, a year after Angie passed away at the age of six, Dick and Alliene founded Angie’s Place, located at The Toledo Children’s Hospital. Angie’s Place provides a library and resources for hospitalized children and their families. But this was only the beginning of the Liden’s philanthropic endeavors.

In March 2010, Dick unexpectedly joined Angie. While cleaning out his desk drawer, Alliene discovered a brochure for Camp Boggy Creek, the SeriousFun camp in Florida. Before long, Alliene made the decision to donate Angie’s decky Cartersunday to the camp. Cartersunday is now the proud emergency boat for the campers. Boating meant so much to the Liden’s, and now children with serious illnesses are benefiting from the boat and the Liden’s generosity.

Now, a decade later, Alliene continues to pay it forward in honor of Angie and Dick. She has visited Camp Boggy Creek, Flying Horse Farms, and North Star Reach. In 2017, Alliene began funding a yearly grant that helps underwrite expenses related to boating and fishing programs at SeriousFun’s US-based camps. The fund plays an important role in enhancing the safety and effectiveness of the waterfront programs and has included the purchase of life jackets, emergency boats, AEDs, adaptive fishing equipment, and lifeguard certifications & training.

Year after year, boating and fishing remain among the most popular and beloved activities at our camps. Thanks to supporters like Alliene, camps can provide a truly authentic camp experience for the children we serve. For our campers, that means getting to discover for themselves—what water does indeed prove to be the great equalizer.
More Than A Place For Foco...

He had always been a shy little guy and had just started school when the first symptoms appeared. He felt sick every morning. We thought it was just nervousness because of school, but when he fell sick during weekends and autumn break, we knew something was not right. We visited many doctors, but everything seemed to be normal. Then, a very attentive neurologist sent him for a CT Scan of his skull.

I remember, it was a Monday. We were told that the examination will last for 26 minutes, and then 10 more minutes to review the results. However, my wife and I were sitting in the waiting room for 50 minutes while Feco was examined. We thought this cannot mean anything good. This is how I discovered that he has a Juvenile Tumor in his cerebellum.

On Tuesday, we already were in the hospital of neurology and Feco was scheduled for surgery for Friday. The tumor had spread to a very sensitive area. The doctors told us that anything could happen. Too many adventures with only his short-term memory was affected. But amid all the surgeries and treatments, something else happened. My shy little son turned out to be incredibly strong and persistent. Everybody admired him. When doctors told him “You need to eat this”, he said “You need to drink this”. He did that as well. He went through this with no complaints at all.

At one point, a doctor in the hospital recommended Bitter Tabor. At first, we could not even imagine how we would handle in the hospital with such a small child. The doctors told us that anything could happen. The idea was that Feco would be in a good and safe place. So, we left him with comfort.

We said goodbye at the gates of the camp and heard nothing of him for a full week. We met again when we picked him up. At the end of this session, I don’t know exactly what happened to him. Completely renewed boy, Feco became cooler, more open-minded, made friends more easily. So, in one word, he became BWOA!

Our region (the area where Feco was born) has been very hard. But then we could start a new, more sensitive one. No wind can tell how grateful I am that a place like Bitter Tabor exists for seriously ill children.

A place where they have the chance to become brave again. Because they are the bravest!

A place where there’s a volunteer at any time, so the kids are not alone and cannot be sad. A place where they find fellowships. Where nobody is sticking out and where they take part in so many adventures we would not be able to provide them, no matter how hard we try.

For this place, for Bitter Tabor, my whole family would do anything.

Ference (Feco’s father)
In 2019, SeriousFun proved that the place isn’t nearly as important as the purpose by showcasing our life-changing mission on two different stages, in two different ways, for the one goal of raising awareness and support for our camps and programs all around the world...and we’re proud of it we do!

At the NYC gala, held at Cipriani 42nd Street, SeriousFun rolled out the red carpet to welcome our friends from the stage and screen, our 30 camps and programs around the world, and our dedicated partners and donors for a night of sparkle, energy, and inspiration. (Just a few of the things SeriousFun does best).

The 2019 NYC gala was certainly ahead of its time or showing people that camp is truly more than a place, bringing camp to life through speeches and performances by Anna Chlumsky, Alyssa Hecker, Ayodicee Doss, Ashley Park, Shawn Colvin, and Trevor Noah. Making the night the most special it could be, our celebrity friends not only spoke passionately about the experiences of our campers, but also helped deliver on some of our campers’ lifelong dreams by performing with them on stage.

In 2019, SeriousFun hosted the Campfire Ball in London.

The Campfire Ball was a unique and unprecedented evening of camp-inspired food and fun featuring a variety of new elements, like camp-themed activity stations, a camp store, a wishing tree, camp desserts, dance party, and, of course, a campfire. And the show was a little different too, taking the form of a traditional camp Stage Night, featuring Christian Amanpour, Diane Birch, Steve Coogan, Damien Rice, Charlie Siem, Twist and Pulse, and new SeriousFun campers, the crowd at Tobacco Dock in London gathered proudly to celebrate the impact of camp and offer support for SeriousFun’s camps and programs, particularly those in Europe.
In January of 2019, SeriousFun camps and programs came together to celebrate the life and legacy of our founder, Paul Newman. The Network’s first-ever global messaging campaign, We Are SeriousFun Day, was carried out on January 16— which would have been Paul Newman’s 94th birthday. Planned collaboratively with camps over the course of seven months, the digital campaign, which took the form of a digital mosaic image of Paul Newman, represented 600 testimonials of impact from camps, families, volunteers, and staff representing all 16 Member Camps.

HASBRO & THE TONIGHT SHOW WITH JIMMY FALLON DELIVER FAMILY FUN FOR SERIOUSFUN

In 2020, SeriousFun camps and programs launched a partnership with Hasbro and Jimmy Fallon to deliver a family-friendly game package in collaboration with the Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon. The most exciting part? The games included a special shout out to SeriousFun! In addition to Hasbro’s generous donation of $150,000 over two years to SeriousFun, Hasbro and Jimmy Fallon chose to leverage the game packaging to raise awareness of SeriousFun and show that they are both dedicated supporters of our mission. The SeriousFun logo is featured on a side panel of each of the three game boxes and each game includes a slip sheet about SeriousFun and our mission. The entire Network is thrilled to see families and friends across the U.S. enjoying these games and learning more about SeriousFun in the process!
2019 Financials

In February 2019, SeriousFun and Krispy Kreme Doughnuts (yes, Krispy Kreme Doughnuts!), announced a new partnership focused on raising awareness and fundraising support for our U.S.-based camps.

In the Spring, Krispy Kreme raised critical funds to support SeriousFun’s camps throughout the U.S. through its Doughnut for a Doughnut campaign aimed at helping children who are underserved or living with serious illnesses. In addition to the fundraising campaign, Krispy Kreme continued its tradition of hosting doughnut dipping stations at Victory Junction, the SeriousFun camp in North Carolina, and also began offering the stations at North Star Reach, the SeriousFun camp in Michigan.

Thank You Donors

In-kind donations are critical to offsetting a variety of network and direct camp costs. These donations not only include products and materials, but partners also provide valuable services, expertise, and resources to help strengthen and optimize the functioning of the camps, programs, and the Support Center. Thank you to the following partners who donated in-kind products and resources in 2019.

CAMP CHAMPS

We are grateful to our Camp Champs who support SeriousFun’s camps and programs by making monthly contributions. A monthly gift—no matter the size—provides a reliable resource to support our year-round camp programs. Thank you for your commitment to camps and kids!

Located just 40 miles from the Krispy Kreme headquarters in Raleigh Durham, NC, Victory Junction in Randleman, NC, has proudly been a partner of Krispy Kreme for more than 10 years!
Paul Newman was always fond of reminding people that this camp community didn’t come into being through his efforts alone. Staff, volunteers, community leaders, and especially donors took the efforts to bring Camp Sundown to life.

Your generosity donation is critical in ensuring the life-changing experience of camp is always offered at no cost to families. Your investment of love yields hopeful children, stronger families, and supportive communities. In doing so, you have become a part of Paul’s enduring legacy, while also paying our debt.
